

Insignificance to Greatness

From log cabin to the White House. That's the story of Abraham Lincoln. But Honest Abe isn't the only person I admire who rose from insignificance to greatness.

Jesus Christ was born into a fairly poor family, and was a member of a rejected minority race. He grew up in a town that had a reputation for evil. One of His closest associates was a traitor who betrayed Him for the price of a slave. Jesus was called insane, a liar, a hypocrite, a glutton, a drunk and a devil. Men twisted His words and questioned His motives, and He was eventually to face death as a young man suffering humiliation and torture on the Cross.

Yet no one has had as much influence on humanity as Jesus. Never underestimate what God can cause to come out of your life, even if you don't feel He has much to work with.
