

Trip Organizer

Missionary David Lee and I, along with some mutual friends, have been traveling together since I was a teenager. David is a great father-figure who does a fantastic job of seeing to it that all the details on these missionary trips are taken care of. Even in tough places, he makes the going easier by his careful planning and thoughtfulness toward all the members of the team.

David is in stark contrast to one trip organizer I worked with. We went into a third world country with no provision for safe water or food. We were thrown into a hostile setting with no translator. Transportation was a disaster, and everyone on the trip was sick—some spent time in the hospital.

I learned something that week—I learned the journey never takes care of itself. You need a guide when you're walking in the unfamiliar.

Since God has promised to give guidance to those who ask, why not join us at Christian Life as we make Christ our life-guide!
