

Listen To the Birds

I am pretty much a morning person, but even so -I do much better after a shower and cup of coffee. Every now and then, I still open the window first thing, especially around dawn, and just listen to the birds. I love the symphony of sounds because it reminds me of what Jesus said about those same birds. He said that even a common sparrow does not fall to the ground without God taking note of it. When Jesus pointed that out, He wanted us to understand that if our Heavenly Father cares about birds, how much more so does He care about us—his crowning creation?

The bottom line? God cares about us even when we don't think He is interested. Jesus said, "Don't you realize that you are of much more value than birds?"
