Labor Day Weekend

Just a couple weeks ago on Labor Day weekend I found myself crowded on a dock with six other people. We sat there gazing at the stars and talking about how beautiful they are. As the conversation continued, we began to talk about how amazing God is and how creative he was when he made the earth. At this point we got the chance to share a little bit of what we believe with a young man named Chao from the country of China. By the end of the trip, he was even more interested in what we believe and since the trip ended he has become involved with a small group and coming to our weekly service.

Small Group

Have you ever thought sharing Jesus with people is hard to do? I felt the same way until I realized it's as easy as having a small group of girls you are sharing your life with. I get the amazing opportunity to meet every week with six to ten girls and talk about Jesus and just have fun together. We also have time to tell about what we are struggling with in our lives and where we need prayer the most. In fact, this opens up the door for God to show us that we are not alone in the situations we are facing. These times of sharing our hearts actually build indescribable community.
