YOUTH GIRLS AT CCC RETREAT

Some of our youth girls spent last weekend at Camp Wawona. The retreat theme was "Mistaken Identity." This is some of what they shared about their experience:

Mirra Priest thought it was a great weekend and the message was about finding your relationship with God, finding out who you are, and just being yourself. She said, "Girls spend so much time trying to blend-in and impress others by dressing like them - we never get a chance to find out who we are."

Holley Estep thought it was really cool because she saw people there she had met at the summer camp. She enjoyed the activities they did like the mirror etching and the walk. Each girl was encouraged to find a place to be alone during the walk and spend some time talking to God. Holley said she liked that a lot. She also really enjoyed Jessica, one of the presenters, and how she shared her story with them. Holley said it sounded like a movie as the speaker told them about her experience.

Misty Cruz was the chaparone for the girls and this is what she had to say, "The main speaker was Esmie Branner who wrote a book about her experiences as the wife of a Muslim and her move to Saudia Arabia. I feel the girls were the most moved by a testimony from a woman named Jessica on Saturday night and we even stayed after so that our girls could speak with her privately. The weekend was spent exploring how to find our true identities in Christ and not being stuck in the identity that the world and circumstance of our birth have placed us in until now. The breakout sessions included such topics as: "Heart Beat: Growing closer to God", "Healthy Identities", "How to Find Mr. Right", and "How Hot am I?". Our girls went up at the final altar call and rededicated their lives to Christ. All in all, it was an amazing weekend and I am so blessed to have been a part of it."

Some of our young men are headed up this weekend for the CCC Guys' Retreat. We hope they enjoy their time just as much.
