Global Kids

OUR MISSION

Founded in 1989, Global Kids empowers youth from underserved communities to achieve academic excellence and global competency, and to become leaders in their communities and the world.

OUR PROGRAM MODEL

- Programming for students in NYC and DC public schools in high poverty areas
- International affairs and global education curriculum
- 21st Century skill building, including problem-solving, critical thinking and digital media proficiency
- Hands-on leadership opportunities through peer education, social action campaigns, and service-learning projects
- Exposure to policy makers and foreign affairs experts
- Focused college and career exploration
- Mentoring and personal support

Hack for Impact program

OUR AWARDS

NEA Award

This year, Global Kids was presented with the First National Bank of Omaha Award for Outstanding Service to Public Education at the NEA Foundation's Salute to Education Gala.

The outstanding service award pays tribute to those who have significantly increased understanding of public education or have otherwise dedicated themselves to serving educators and students. Past recipients of this award include former President Bill Clinton, Title IX advocate Billie Jean King, Sesame Street Workshop, the NAACP, Nickelodeon, and the Hispanic Scholarship Fund.

NBC Universal Foundation Grant

Global Kids was one of three winners of the NBCUniversal Foundation's 21st Century Solutions Grant Challenge. The funds supported our citywide digital learning program, Hack for Impact, which creates a space for real-world inquiry, community problem-solving and STEM skill development.

2017 NEA Foundation Gala

Dear Friends,

As Global Kids approaches its third decade of programming, we have a lot for which we are grateful.

We are grateful for our students who continue to inspire us and bring us hope. This report highlights their accomplishments, activism and ability to make a difference in our world over the past year. Global Kids middle schoolers tackled the complicated issues of racism and discrimination by facilitating workshops at our Annual Youth Conference. Nine high schoolers traveled to Japan and collaborated with Japanese peers to make a geo-locative game to assist residents of Onagawa, a tsunami-ravaged town. Over 50 GK students traveled to Washington, DC where they inspired fellow marchers and made their voices heard at the People's Climate March. Almost all of our high schoolers graduated high school and 93% of those graduates went on to college, several of them receiving full scholarships. These are just a few examples.

We are grateful for our staff. GK educators are smart, talented and diverse. A growing percentage of staff members are GK alumni who bring unique insights to our programs and who relate to our current students in ways only an alum can. Our educators speak Spanish, Bengali, French, Urdu, Arabic, Haitian Creole, and more, helping them connect not only to recent immigrant students, but also to their families. They work tirelessly to support our students and school communities.

Finally, we are grateful for you—the supporters who make Global Kids' mission a reality. Without you, the incredible accomplishments of our students and our staff would not be possible. Global Kids' Young Professionals Committee has grown and made a substantive impact on Global Kids through their support of the annual GK5K Run/Walk and the Passports Party. Our volunteers give our students valuable insights through career days and mentoring opportunities. Global Kids' donors help us ensure that students from underserved neighborhoods receive the skills, knowledge and opportunities they need to become the ethical leaders and global citizens our world needs.

Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Evie Hantzopoulos

OUR YOUTH

In today's ever-changing world, those who succeed must be guided by empathy and the notions of diplomacy and peacebuilding. Through Global Kids' programs, our youth remain informed, thoughtful and focused on accomplishing purpose-driven work. These qualities are reflected in our student survey shown below.

We recognize that our world demands a more diverse pool of leaders. Our students' backgrounds represent the future.

In 2016-2017, Global Kids enrolled 3,177 students in its weekly after school and expanded learning time programs and 1,563 students in our in-school leadership development and service learning programs.

From a survey of Global Kids students:

95% said GK improved their leadership and teamwork skills.

93% believed that GK helped them to become more involved in community service projects.

97% increased their ability to take action on issues affecting their communities and in the world.

95% of Global Kids Leaders demonstrate the values and attitudes of global citizens.

95% agreed that GK increased their interest in domestic and international issues.

YOUTH LEADERS

POWER OF CITIZENRY

In our signature program, Power of Citizenry (POC), students explore issues such as global health, poverty, children's rights, sustainability, discrimination, and human rights through workshops, field trips, guest speakers, mentoring, and hands-on service projects. The program equips youth with the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in school and participate in shaping international and public policies in an ever-changing, complex world.

The culminating event for the students involved in our year-long POC program is the Annual Youth Conference. The conference provides Global Kids Leaders with an opportunity to demonstrate their growth in the program. Each year, GK Leaders devote countless hours to developing, writing, organizing and finally producing the event that takes place in the spring.

This year, over 300 students and educators attended the conference, End Discrimination In Our Generation, where they listened to speakers, watched performance pieces on political issues from students in our Undesirable Elements creative arts program and participated in small student-led workshops on discrimination based-issues such as sexism, classism, homophobia, and Islamophobia.

HUMAN RIGHTS ACTIVIST PROJECT

Since 2000, Global Kids has offered its Human Rights Activist Project (HRAP) program at school sites and our headquarters. The program gives students the tools to influence public policy, providing a platform for action using a human rights framework. One of the highlights from this year was our trip to Washington, DC for the People's Climate March. Over 50 Global Kids youth climate activists participated. This was the first major protest for many of the students. They brought enthusiasm, knowledge and passion that motivated all the marchers around them.

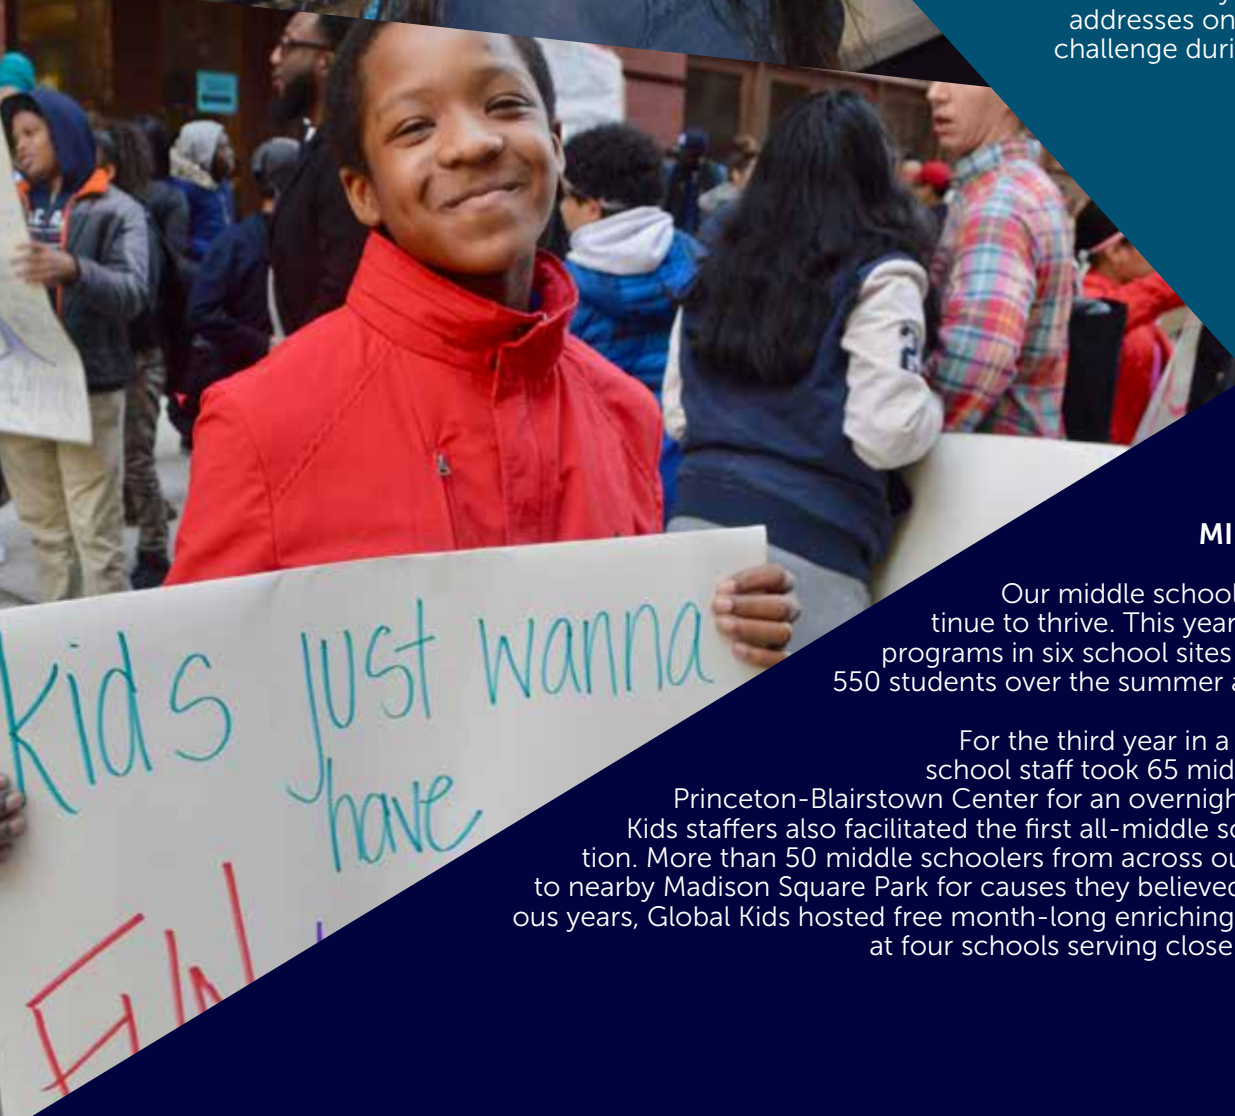

Four students from HRAP represented the youth voice in Morocco for the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP 22).

DIGITAL LEARNING AND LEADERSHIP

Global Kids continues to be a leader in digital media education for youth. To reflect the evolution of our tech-based programs, we changed the name of the Online Leadership Program to Digital Learning and Leadership (DLL). Global Kids broadened its curriculum by introducing three new DLL programs: Girl Hack, MakerSquad, and Hack for Impact Lab. Girl Hack is Global Kids' interdisciplinary program for girls grades 9-12 that explores domestic and global girls and women's issues through game design and computer programming. MakerSquad is Global Kids' program for elementary-school aged youth, which covers a range of global topics and interactive hands-on activities in a maker-space environment. Youth have the opportunity to learn the basics of web literacy, robotics, game design and stop motion with Ready Maker, littleBits, Scratch, Lego Movie Maker and many other tools. Global Kids offered a citywide DLL high school program, Hack for Impact Lab, creating a space for real-world inquiry, community problem-solving advocacy and STEM skill development. The Lab operated like a civic design studio, supporting an array of projects, that addresses one local or global challenge during the program.

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Our middle school programs continue to thrive. This year, Global Kids led programs in six school sites serving close to 550 students over the summer and school year.

For the third year in a row, our middle school staff took 65 middle schoolers to Princeton-Blairstown Center for an overnight retreat. Global Kids staffers also facilitated the first all-middle school day of action. More than 50 middle schoolers from across our sites marched to nearby Madison Square Park for causes they believed in. As in previous years, Global Kids hosted free month-long enriching summer camps at four schools serving close to 115 students.

CLASS OF 2017 FOUR YEARS ON

Umamah Masum, Global Kids Alumna 2017

Umamah enrolled in Global Kids during her freshman year at Curtis High School. With Global Kids, Umamah traveled to Japan, served as an official delegate to the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) at the United Nations, was a fellow in GK's Summer Institute at the Council on Foreign Relations, spoke at various climate change protests and tenaciously (and successfully) advocated for a climate change education resolution in the NYC Council.

Umamah won the prestigious Posse Scholarship and is now attending Lafayette University.

"Global Kids helped me develop skills that I use every day. The workshops opened my eyes in a way that the average high school classroom didn't. I came to college confident in my ability to articulate myself and participate in deeper conversations about the world. This is all because of the trainers at Global Kids teaching me how to be a global citizen."

—Umamah Masum

Alaya Shearman, Global Kids Alumna 2017

Alaya began her time in Global Kids as a freshman. In 10th grade, she was a part of our NYC Haunts digital media program where she and a group of students created a geo-locative game that explored racism through the eyes of Jackie Robinson. That summer, she demonstrated the game to First Lady Michelle Obama at GK's offices. In the summer after her junior year, Alaya went to Haiti with Global Kids to learn film-making and to explore current social and political issues in Haiti.

"Global Kids has positively impacted me after high school in different areas of my own life, from the college that I chose to the types of clubs and events that I decided to join in college. I have been blessed with the opportunity to be able to go to Adelphi University in Long Island and be accepted into the Levermore Global Scholars program, which is like Global Kids, but on the college level."

—Alaya Shearman

17 SPOTLIGHT OF GLOBAL KIDS

Epi Ramirez, Global Kids Alumnus 2017

Epi joined Global Kids in 9th grade at William Cullen Bryant High School. In his first year, he advocated for a green roof on his school, got permission to build it, and helped create it with his fellow students. By his second year, he joined our digital media program and produced an app to address the issue of bullying. Global Kids mentored Epi during his college application process and connected him with Centre College. He received a significant scholarship from Centre and he won the Global Kids' Foundation 17 award that granted him $5,000 per year for four years.

"When you look at the world outside Global Kids you get to understand why social activism and global awareness are important, especially for the youth community. Youth have so much passion and energy and they express it in different forms. For example, Global Kids has prepared me for debates and projects that I've worked on in college. It's been great to apply what I learned at Global Kids to college, knowing that I am making a positive impact."
—Epi Ramirez

Deloris Soto, Global Kids Alumna 2017

Deloris found Global Kids at her high school, Secondary School for Law, during her freshman year. She said that having Global Kids at her school helped shape her passions and interests. Deloris was a part of GK's Summer Institute at the Council on Foreign Relations, joined seven other students on a cultural exchange and leadership trip to Japan and served as a student member on Global Kids' Board of Directors.

Deloris currently attends Northeastern University on a full four-year scholarship through the school's Torch Scholars Program.

"As an Environmental Studies and International Affairs major, Global Kids has helped me become a brave and curious student as I seek out international experiential learning opportunities. At the same time, I am actively engaged in my new community in Boston, advocating for issues that I am passionate about and volunteering in surrounding communities. GK has made me a global citizen."
—Deloris Soto

BEYOND HIGH SCHOOL

Each year, Global Kids seniors graduate high school and enroll in college at high rates. This past year, 99% of GK seniors graduated high school and 93% enrolled in college. GK's College and Career Program provides guidance through college and scholarship application parties, college tours, internships, mentoring from GK staff and professionals, and job readiness training.

Global Kids took trips to and had career days with Goldman Sachs, Modern Bank, AOL, BMO Capital Markets and more.

In total, almost 600 students went on day and overnight college trips to schools such as University of Virginia, SUNY Albany, Adelphi University, Johns Hopkins University, CUNY Lehman College, among many others.

We placed over 60 Global Kids high school students in internships at companies and organizations, including Make the Road NY, Staten Island State Senator Diane Savino's office, NYC Councilwoman Debi Rose's office, Brooklyn Public Library, Neighbors Together, African Film Festival, New York County Family Court and many more.

GLOBAL VISION

Through international trips, Global Kids aims to deepen our students' understanding of global affairs, empower them to connect and empathize with their peers in the countries they visit, and help them become active global citizens.

This year, we took 48 students to six countries on cultural exchange and service-learning trips:

- Morocco — Four students from GK's Human Rights Activist Project participated in the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP 22) in Morocco to hold leaders accountable for halting the effects of climate change and to meet with fellow youth climate activists.
- Peace Boat to Central America — Ten Global Kids students from John Adams High School set sail on Peace Boat to learn about the UN's Sustainable Development Goals and indigenous cultures in Panama, Guatemala and El Salvador.
- Japan — For the second year in a row, we took nine students to the Tohoku region of Japan. This year, they created a geo-locative game to assist residents of Onagawa, a town hit hard by the 2011 tsunami.
- South Africa — Fifteen students from the Marion Barry Youth Leadership Institute in DC visited South Africa for a service-learning and career exploration trip.

Global Kids Summer Institute at the Council on Foreign Relations

Thirty Global Kids students participated in the Summer Institute at the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), now in its 12th year. The Institute participants learned about and discussed foreign policy issues and built on their interests in pursuing international affairs as a major in college and/or as a career.

The students examined topics including the the crisis in Syria, climate change, global migration, the conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo, the future of the European Union, the rise of extremism, women's rights and global trade agreements.

They heard from experts in the field including Robert Rubin, Former Secretary of the US Treasury; Carla Anne Robbins, Journalist and CFR Fellow; William S. Hayes of Kosmos Energy; and Kambale Musavali from the Friends of the Congo.

To gain first-hand knowledge of careers in international affairs or related fields, they visited such places as Barclays, The New York Times, the U.S. Mission to the United Nations and Adelphi University.

GLOBAL KIDS-DC

Since 2010, Global Kids has provided our quality youth leadership and global education programming to District students. We returned to Anacostia High School, Ballou Senior High School, Bell Multicultural High School and McKinley Technology High School and offered weekly citywide programming at the GK-DC offices. The Marion Barry Youth Leadership Institute (MBYLI), made possible by the DC Department of Employment Services, continues to be an integral part of GK-DC, offering year-round programming focused on global education and career in international fields. Each year, the Institute culminates in an international summer trip. This year, 15 MBYLI students traveled to South Africa where they engaged with political activists, US diplomats, community leaders and South African youth.

In addition to the trip to South Africa, GK-DC offered its Summer Institute at The Catholic University of America. Over 40 students participated in this intensive four-week foreign policy program.

During the school year, GK-DC students organized their first Annual Youth Conference on the topic of trafficking.

THE FUTURE

NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio launched a major initiative in 2014 to expand the number of "Community Schools" in an effort to bolster academic achievement for New York City public school children. Community Schools are not only academic environments for students, but "neighborhood hubs" where families are welcome and can receive social services. GK works along with a number of other community-based organizations to provide the best services to each school community.

In 2016-2017, Global Kids became the lead partner in three community schools, offering our global education and leadership programs with social services supports for students and families. In 2017, Global Kids was awarded contracts to be the lead partner in three additional community schools for the 2017-2018 school year.
