LSU AMBASSADORS

SROWhesion Service Project

Casey Wortham | Associate Class of 2015

This past Saturday I had the opportunity to volunteer at Front Yard Bikes and serve with the rest of the SROW family. Volunteering is one of the many characteristics that I believe makes up a really good leader. For me personally whenever I volunteer I feel as though it takes me outside of my comfort zone, and gives me an opportunity to work with new challenges and tackle those challenges from different angles. When hanging out with people with different life experiences it always encourages me to view new perspectives on my priorities. This is exactly what happened for me on Saturday morning while at front yard bikes. I loved seeing the eager faces of all the kids who were nothing but pros while serving at FYB. It was so nice to see my fellow members of SROW and the kids who visit FYB regularly working together to clean up the park and beautify the garden. I also noticed how the bright and vivid colors a few of us painted on the boxes that contained the plants in their garden strongly reflected the passion we all had that morning to help out the workers at FYB. I'm so glad that the SROW committee had the opportunity to bond with one another while helping those in need. It's always a very fulfilling when accomplishing our mission as ambassadors: recruit, orient, advise and SERVE!

EMILY JONES

Spotlight Ambassador

"Emily was incredibly hard-working during the service project during Training 5. When original plans fell through and we couldn't visit Front Yard Bikes, Emily was the first to jump into a new plan for a service project. She literally never stopped working and made an incredible poster for some middle schoolers. Go head 'nah Emily!"

What Alpha Phi Did For Me

My term as Chapter President came to an end last fall, and I couldn't help but look back over the year and all that happened. Being Chapter President and a member of Ambassadors has helped me become the leader I am today, one that is confident to run a small meeting with officers to standing in front of 320 people and running a sorority chapter meeting. I am so thankful for the experience that I've had with both organizations, through the conferences and interactions with volunteers, through opportunities for networking with so many individuals and by making friends and mentors all over the country. Getting involved in leadership roles during your college career is something that I could not stress enough to any college student. If you want to get the most out of your college experience, I encourage you to get involved in any organization that makes you happy. I love that Alpha Phi is a place where I have found individuals who challenge you to be the best version of yourself, while also coming together as an organization and bettering the community through the power of philanthropy. If it weren't for LSU Ambassadors and getting involved as a leader through my involvement in SROW and as being an Orientation Leader, I wouldn't have had the drive to get more involved in Alpha Phi and be on the Executive Council as a new member. It is through getting involved in organizations on campus that you are able to find so many opportunities for leadership, skill building, and networking that will help you grow as an individual. My time as Alpha Phi President really was an experience that no words can explain and I will never be able to give back to what my sorority has taught me and how it has prepared me to be a better leader and contributor to my community.
