KEEPING IT SIMPLE

The weekend cost already covers lodging, activities, and good meals... so there isn't a need for participants to bring a lot of snacks or a lot of additional money with them to the retreat.
Keep your packing simple!;

RETREAT CODE OF CONDUCT

(TO BE REVIEWED BY PARENTS AND STUDENTS)

What follows are three overarching rules that will need to be observed by all students participating in the retreat. They are designed to ensure that all of our participants conduct themselves in a manner that is respectful of themselves and others. Failure to adhere to this Code may result in a student being sent home early from the retreat.

1. NO TOM FOOLERY. Participants will need to conduct themselves in a manner that respects the property and safety of others around them. As such, creating an environment that is unsafe or destructive to others will not be tolerated. The following are some examples of activities that can be considered “Tom Foolery”: pranks, hazing, theft, assault, cliques, rough housing, insubordination, etc. If a student is open to participating in the activities of the weekend, welcomes the opportunity to meet new people, and respects the wishes/space/property of others, they shouldn’t have a problem with this part of the Code.

2. NO CHUCK WOOLERY. The retreat is designed as a space for spiritual growth in the lives of our students. Part of this developmental process may entail the growth of the group as a closer community. With that being said, it should be noted that the retreat is not designed for students to be making a “Love Connection”. As such, students should not plan on forming exclusive dating/dating-type relationships, nor should they engage in any physical activity that might communicate this kind of relationship while on the retreat.

3. NO STEVE POOLERY. Last, but not least... No complaining about the weather! Retreat activities will be adjusted if need-be, and students should plan on bringing clothing appropriate to the forecast (and life in the Pacific Northwest).

We have read/reviewed the Retreat Code of Conduct.
