

The Collaborative Initiative to End Human Trafficking has Resource Centers in cities across Northeast Ohio.

These resource centers are filled with books, movies, articles, and training materials to help you better recognize and understand the issue of modern day slavery or “human trafficking.”

These materials can be checked out by contacting the resource center representative nearest you. That information can be found on the back of this pamphlet.

What is the Collaborative Initiative to End Human Trafficking?

The Collaborative Initiative to End Human Trafficking is a group of concerned people in northern Ohio who have been working since 2007 to advocate for the prevention and abolition of human trafficking. The group is involved in networking with local and national organizations, researching the issue, and connecting agencies and services on behalf of victims. The Collaborative Initiative also sponsors educational events and can host a program or provide a speaker to discuss the issue with your group or organization.

If you're interested in learning more, check out a book or DVD or host a speaker! You can do this by contacting your local resource center.
