

Holy Wind

based on Acts 2:1-21

Jesus told the disciples to wait in Jerusalem until the Holy Spirit came to them. They waited and waited. Finally, on the day of Pentecost, when the disciples were together in a room, it happened.

A strong wind rushed through the room. It was all they could hear. Then swirling flames like tongues of fire danced over each one's head. They were filled with power. Each one began to speak in a language that was new to them.

Outside, visitors to Jerusalem for Pentecost heard the noise of the wind and the languages being spoken. "What is going on?" they asked.

"We have been filled with God's Holy Spirit."

"But I hear my language spoken by someone not from my country," said one of the visitors. "What does this mean?"

"Long ago God promised to send this Spirit to God's people," said Peter. "This is what you are seeing and hearing."

The Holy Spirit blew through the crowd too. Many people joined the disciples and became followers of Jesus that day.
