

Mission Impossible 2.0

OCF Office Remodel Project

Is it impossible? About $30,000 has been pledged and we need $80,000. Then again only around 20% of the congregation has made a pledge, so that means that 80% have not pledged an amount to be given over the next 2 years.

So does that mean that only 20% of our church really consider OCF to be their home? Are 80% of our congregation, every Sunday, visitors? Do you consider yourself a visitor? Or is OCF your church home? If OCF is your church home than you are a contributor, right? That is what happens when we become family. I don't know of any healthy family where the members of the family do not contribute to the family in some way.

You can see where I am going with this. The fact of the matter is that the OCF office needs to be redone. This is not an option. You believe this too, based on the congregational vote we did last December. It might take us longer than we anticipated, but at some point we will do the remodel work that needs to be done. But the larger issue here is that if you are getting this newsletter it is probably because we consider you to be family. And if you consider OCF to be your church home, are you a contributor to this office remodel project? If not why not?

Do you have nothing to contribute? Really? Honestly? I think if you put some prayerful thought into it you can come up with SOME way to contribute. Here are some ideas. Make something and sell it. Have a garage sale. Offer your labor to help with the demo part of the project. Put that something you have had laying around your garage on Craig's List and sell it. Organize a car wash. Decide as a family that you will give up spending money on one item a week. Challenge your children to put aside a percentage of their allowance and then you do the same. Make it a prayerful family project.

Now I know that an office remodel project is not something that sounds too exciting. Most of you have never even been to the office. It's kind of like mowing the lawn at your house. It's not the most thrilling job in the world, but it still needs to get done. Guests don't mow the lawn, family does. Let's do this.
