Popcorn Theology

MOVIE AND FAITH

Popcorn Theology uses popular movies as springboard for connecting our faith stories with our life stories. Movies have become one of the primary ways our culture tells stories.

Often when we watch thought-provoking films we do not have a space to discuss them from the standpoint of our faith. Popcorn theology helps us to “watch for God at the movies” and therefore teaches us to watch for God in our own life stories.

What movie will be shown?

During Popcorn Theology, dinner is served so we can share a meal together just like Jesus did. Following the meal, a movie is shown and there is time to discuss the movie and how it intersects with our faith. Popcorn Theology happens several times throughout the year. You are invited for an enriching evening in body, mind and soul!

All are welcome, however some of the movies are intended more for an adult audience.

Is there a cost?

No, Popcorn Theology is FREE. Just come, enjoy the movie and join the discussion on the movie, and how it connects to our faith.
