A Christian Response to Cohabitation

(Genesis 2:18-25)

There are many things in this world that nearly everyone believes is wrong – theft (although it is defined differently in different places), murder, betrayal, and kidnapping are a few examples. And there are things which the world says are legal, but we all know they are subject to abuse – divorce, abortion, some aspects of contract law. Then there are things that society has little problem with but Christians see as sinful – substance abuse, promiscuity, and cohabitation are some.

This morning we are going to discuss a Christian response to cohabitation. I would like to approach this by making a clear statement concerning what I believe about it. Then I want to back up and look at where we are as a society, what it means to be married, and then share some thoughts for a Christian response. As with many things of this nature, the starting points, attitude, and direction are all important factors in determining a loving response. What I hope you will hear this morning is not a set of rules, but rather a collection of attitudes that will guide a response with discernment.

I believe that it has been God's intention from the beginning that one man and one woman live together in God's presence in a lifelong, committed, faithful, relationship until separated in this life by the death of one. In our society that means that they are legally married as recognized by the state with a marriage certificate filed at a local jurisdiction courthouse.

That means that in whatever state of matrimony, common law understanding, or personal commitment relationship men and women are in currently the movement should be toward a monogamous, faithful, legally recognized marriage.

As with many social issues when interacting with the church, the goal and direction of movement is simple, but the answer to the question of how we respond is much more complex. Suffice it to say that tax policy, insurance issues, entitlement benefits, social pressures, the pill, feminism, the sexual revolution, and a culture of instant gratification have changed societies attitudes and norms. This means that there are many among us who have lived together before we were married. Some of us knew it was wrong in the eyes of God, others never gave it any thought.

This morning we are going to think about where we are as a society. We will discuss what the church has done to sometimes exacerbate the problem. We will learn what we can do to encourage couples to invite God into their relationship and seal their commitment with vows before God and state.

WELCOME GUEST

We are glad you've joined us for worship today!

Please fill out the information sheet found in the maroon binder at the end of your pew.
*An attended nursery is provided during worship assembly as well as a Children's Church for ages 4 years thru 3rd grade which dismisses after Communion.

Communion—We celebrate the resurrection of our Lord every Sunday (“first day of the week”) through a time of communion known as the Lord’s Supper. The “unleavened bread” represents His body and the “fruit of the vine” (cup of grape juice) represents His blood shed on the cross. As our guest, you are welcome to participate, though you are not required to do so.

Giving— We are challenged to be good stewards of God’s blessings by supporting the various ministries of the church through a weekly collection that is taken during our worship time. You are welcome to give, but please do not feel as though you must.
