What is a Community Group? Community Groups meet at least twice a month and follow a fairly consistent pattern. We were made to journey through this life in relationship with others and Community Groups are a great way to make that happen.

What happens at a Community Group? Generally, we make time for people to share about their week and catch up with one another. Every group is a little different. Usually there is a combination of praying, studying, worshipping, and hanging out. It depends on what seems most relevant to the specific group and the specific night. The leaders encourage the entire group to participate. A Community Group is the best place to "know and be known" at DCV.
