Hello! I thought I would give you an update. Now that we aren't driving to Camdenton every week, I'd hoped to find more time, but somehow Murphy's Law of the Clock is proving true. Much of what is occupying our time is self-inflicted (but necessary).

Last week I finished translating 75 pages of course notes on Animism and Folk Religion for the training program in Spanish and sent it to Edwin in Mexico. His response was both an encouragement when he said, "... Truly, thank you so much for the translated notes. I'm going to start class that class (animism) in a week. Wow! Thank the Lord."

The course he just finished was on World View, regarding the "lens" through which a culture interprets, understands and explains the world where they live. I'm pretty sure the notes I translated on that subject were a part of his teaching as well. I know the translation will need a LOT of editing... any translation does. But my goal isn't perfection. at this point we just want to get this material into the capable hands of these trainers so the Spirit of God can use them to prepare more workers.

I have now started translating notes on the cultural concept of honor and shame. We all know the concept about "losing face" in eastern societies, but I'm working on the subject of how the concept of honor and shame is manifested in the latin culture. I am amazed at how deeply the concept affects my latino friends. It's written by someone from the outside, so I'm anxious to see how my latino brothers see it. I wish I had it 30 years ago when we were starting up in Mexico.

Once again Jeri and I want to express that you are so very important in helping us continue with this task. THANK YOU FOR YOUR PART!

It is a great privilege for those in IFCA International (including SRBC) to regularly pray for our churches, our ministries, our families, our country and our world. Each year we are given the additional blessing of praying during the IFCA International Week of Prayer. This year the date for this week is April 30-May 7.

This is a wonderful opportunity to pray each day during the week in specific areas. Flyers with a suggested topic for each day can be found on the tables in the lobby.

We are always to be in the attitude of prayerfulness (Philippians 4:6; James 1:5). SRBC prays corporately at staff meetings and monthly prayer meetings, through the use of emails, the bulletin, and through various fellowship and ministry groups.
