LANE COUNTY KANSAS

Lane County was organized on June 3, 1886, by Richard Deighton; Thomas Hahn; Joshua Wheatcroft; John Schiereck; and William Walker. The county was named for James H. Lane and contains the town of Dighton. The town of Dighton was named for Richard Deighton, the surveyor who came in 1878 with four homesteaders claiming the four quarters that constituted Dighton.

The dust storms of the 1930s resulted in the area's early development of irrigation. The discovery of oil in the 1950s and the continuing development of the oil industry is a primary economic factor in the county.

Three churches were founded in the county in the same year: Dighton Methodist Church, April 15, 1886; Dighton Christian Church, May 26, 1886; and Shields Methodist Church, May 1886. The first county fair was held in Dighton, October 1-2, 1886. It continues. The first school was held in Dighton in 1879. In 1885 the county was divided into five school districts.
