Faith Community Nurses

"Faith Community Nurses are registered nurses who volunteer in congregations of any faith tradition. They act as: integrators of faith and health; health educators; health counselors; referral agents; health advocates; promoters of support groups; and coordinators of volunteers. FCN's may visit with congregants at their congregation, make home visits, consult over the phone, or accompany them to various health appointments. They do not respond to health emergencies or offer direct hands-on physical care. Each nurse will structure her role to suit her weekly volunteer hours and personal resources."

Feel free to contact congregations not listed below to see if they have a faith community nurse program.
