

In just a few days, 134 men and women from West Virginia's 55 counties will take their seats under the words from Proverbs 4:7. And, for 60 days, these civil magistrates – who you and I elected – will propose, debate, and vote on laws that will affect this state and your family.

If ever there was a time for wisdom, this is it. True wisdom – the kind that yields understanding – is found only in the pages of Scripture.

If the leaders we elected are to find wisdom, we must pray that God will reveal it to them.

As you gather today, pray for your leaders – by name. In your moments of quiet prayer, intercede for those you elected. At home, when you pray over your food, remember to add supplications, intercessions, and thanksgivings for your politicians.

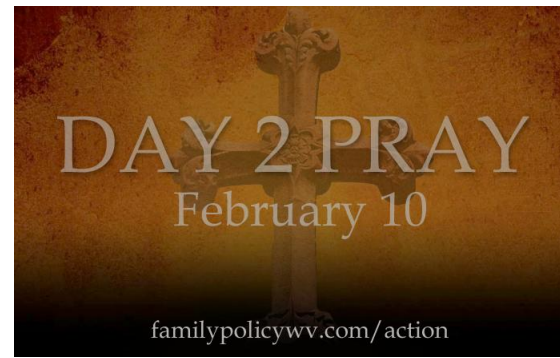

- Pray for God to reveal his wisdom to our leaders.
- Pray God's protection over the many marriages and families represented in our legislators.
- Thank God for the freedom to participate in self-governance.

As citizens of West Virginia, we owe our leaders our active support of government. As citizens of heaven, we owe them our prayers.

On the opposite side of the Capitol dome are scrolled the words from Proverbs 3:13 that we hope will be the result of our prayers, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding."

By God's grace, so let it be.

The Family Policy Council of West Virginia
P.O. Box 566,
Charleston, WV 25322
www.FamilyPolicyWV.com/Day2Pray

In just a few days, 134 men and women from West Virginia's 55 counties will take their seats under the words from Proverbs 4:7. And, for 60 days, these civil magistrates – who you and I elected – will propose, debate, and vote on laws that will affect this state and your family.

If ever there was a time for wisdom, this is it. True wisdom – the kind that yields understanding – is found only in the pages of Scripture.

If the leaders we elected are to find wisdom, we must pray that God will reveal it to them.

As you gather today, pray for your leaders – by name. In your moments of quiet prayer, intercede for those you elected. At home, when you pray over your food, remember to add supplications, intercessions, and thanksgivings for your politicians.

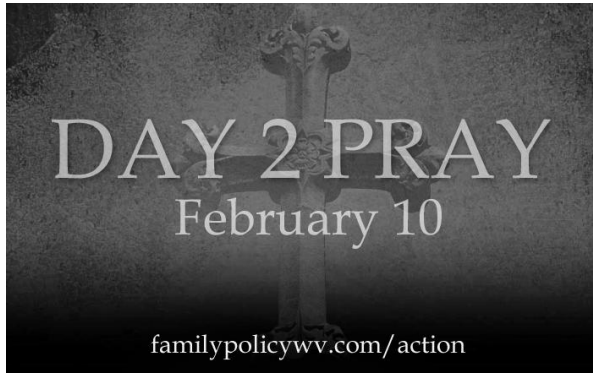

- Pray for God to reveal his wisdom to our leaders.
- Pray God's protection over the many marriages and families represented in our legislators.
- Thank God for the freedom to participate in self-governance.

As citizens of West Virginia, we owe our leaders our active support of government. As citizens of heaven, we owe them our prayers.

On the opposite side of the Capitol dome are scrolled the words from Proverbs 3:13 that we hope will be the result of our prayers, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding."

By God's grace, so let it be.

The Family Policy Council of West Virginia
P.O. Box 566,
Charleston, WV 25322
www.FamilyPolicyWV.com/Day2Pray

In just a few days, 134 men and women from West Virginia's 55 counties will take their seats under the words from Proverbs 4:7. And, for 60 days, these civil magistrates – who you and I elected – will propose, debate, and vote on laws that will affect this state and your family.

If ever there was a time for wisdom, this is it. True wisdom – the kind that yields understanding – is found only in the pages of Scripture.

If the leaders we elected are to find wisdom, we must pray that God will reveal it to them.

As you gather today, pray for your leaders – by name. In your moments of quiet prayer, intercede for those you elected. At home, when you pray over your food, remember to add supplications, intercessions, and thanksgivings for your politicians.

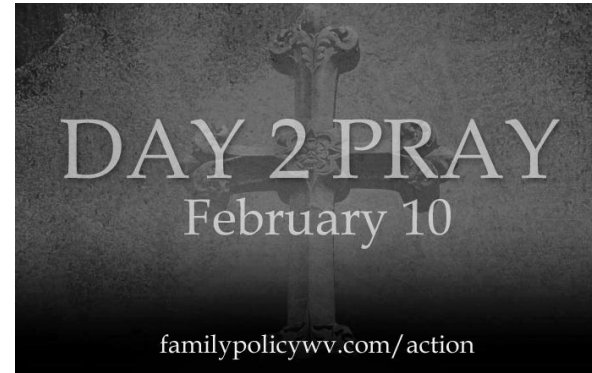

- Pray for God to reveal his wisdom to our leaders.
- Pray God's protection over the many marriages and families represented in our legislators.
- Thank God for the freedom to participate in self-governance.

As citizens of West Virginia, we owe our leaders our active support of government. As citizens of heaven, we owe them our prayers.

On the opposite side of the Capitol dome are scrolled the words from Proverbs 3:13 that we hope will be the result of our prayers, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding."

By God's grace, so let it be.

The Family Policy Council of West Virginia
P.O. Box 566,
Charleston, WV 25322
www.FamilyPolicyWV.com/Day2Pray

In just a few days, 134 men and women from West Virginia's 55 counties will take their seats under the words from Proverbs 4:7. And, for 60 days, these civil magistrates – who you and I elected – will propose, debate, and vote on laws that will affect this state and your family.

If ever there was a time for wisdom, this is it. True wisdom – the kind that yields understanding – is found only in the pages of Scripture.

If the leaders we elected are to find wisdom, we must pray that God will reveal it to them.

As you gather today, pray for your leaders – by name. In your moments of quiet prayer, intercede for those you elected. At home, when you pray over your food, remember to add supplications, intercessions, and thanksgivings for your politicians.

- Pray for God to reveal his wisdom to our leaders.
- Pray God's protection over the many marriages and families represented in our legislators.
- Thank God for the freedom to participate in self-governance.

As citizens of West Virginia, we owe our leaders our active support of government. As citizens of heaven, we owe them our prayers.

On the opposite side of the Capitol dome are scrolled the words from Proverbs 3:13 that we hope will be the result of our prayers, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding."

By God's grace, so let it be.

The Family Policy Council of West Virginia
P.O. Box 566,
Charleston, WV 25322
www.FamilyPolicyWV.com/Day2Pray