

Tammie Head

Sitting on her bed in a tiny worn-out trailer, Tammie wondered what to do with her messed-up life. Dropping out of school at the age of 15 and subsequently leaving home, Tammie knew all too well a life of dysfunction. Experiencing divorce from an early age, she immediately felt the brokenness of relationships gone sour.

Growing up with every conceivable dysfunction, Tammie would tell you that her heart started fraying from as early as she can remember. Eventually, sin-filled exposure led to sin-filled living, and the only road that she knew was fear, insecurity, and rebellious living. Nevertheless, in the darkest of hours, while desperately wanting someone to save her, Tammie began to hear God calling her to Himself.

It has been over a decade now since Tammie first met the Lord but one reality has remained: She is still so in love with her Savior all these years later. Being rescued from a trashcan of life, Tammie lives to tell of her wonderful Jesus. He can redeem any life. And the beauty is that He wants to! Sharing the Word with anyone who will listen, Tammie's utmost passion is for others to find the One who has captivated her own soul.

Tammie joyfully teaches a Women's Sunday school class at Houston's First Baptist Church. Women are drawn to her openness, honesty, passion, grace and tenderness, but most of all, her love for the Lord. Through practical Biblical insight, she teaches the Word of God in an understandable and relevant way. She will inspire you, challenge you, and even dare you to seek after God with everything you have.

Tammie resides in Cypress, Texas, with her husband Erin and their two teen-aged daughters, Peyton and Savannah. When they are not busy with the affairs of life, all four Heads love to travel, enjoy loved ones, visit with friends, and serve together on the mission field.
