Sharing the Pastor’s Heart...

Luke chapter three contains the description of John the Baptist’s ministry. You’ll remember that he came to the Jordan River, preaching the Kingdom of God, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sin (v.3). Maybe it’s because he was a Baptist, but most of us have a fond affection for this man. Actually, it probably has more to do with his obvious humility and his boldness for Christ.

One thing that I find interesting is Luke’s summary of John’s ministry in verse 18. He writes, “So with many other exhortations, he preached good news to the people.”

Good news? As Luke records John’s proclamation, it’s really difficult to see what is so good about the news that John communicates. The main thrust of John’s message has to do with judgment and wrath. The call for repentance doesn’t always come across as good news.

We recently learned some difficult news concerning our little girl, Annison. It turns out that she has a milk protein allergy—and that has caused much of her fussiness. In and of itself, that is not good news. It is good, however, to be aware of that news, so we can make the necessary adjustments.

In the same way, John’s call to repentance is good news precisely because it identifies the problem. The problem that John identifies is our sinful rebellion against a Holy God, which invites the wrath of God. The unquenchable fire that he describes in verse 17 doesn’t sound so warm and inviting, does it?

John doesn’t leave us in our sin. He points us to the only One who can take away our sin. He identifies the problem and points us to the solution. And that’s good news! In fact, the term Luke uses for good news could also be translated as gospel. And no one responds to the gospel who doesn’t first understand the bad news about sin.

Even if he was a caveman-like figure, John is alright in our books. The truth is, Jesus said that he was the greatest man to be born of a woman. As we serve the same Savior that he served, let us humbly and boldly proclaim the glorious grace of God.

Serving Together,
Pastor Nate
