Russell's Ritings....

Count Zinzendorf, a Moravian and a friend of John Wesley, once wandered into an art gallery. In the gallery was hanging a painting, "Ecce Home", by Sternberg. Underneath the painting were two lines in Latin,

"hoc feci pro te;

quid facid pro me?"

Those phrases are translated, "This is what I did for you; what have you done for me?" Zinzendorf said afterwards, "I have but one passion, and that is Jesus."

What is YOUR passion? As we come to the end of the Lenten season our focus should be on Jesus, and Jesus alone. We have the opportunity to celebrate the salvation event at UMCE this Sunday, Palm Sunday, with two worship services. At 8:30 I am preaching a sermon from Luke 22:61, "When the Lord Looks at You" and at 10:30 our choir will be presenting the Cantata, "Walk Worthy" by Joseph Martin. Come and bring a friend!

From the heart,

Russell
