A Contented Heart is a Grateful Heart

"Godliness with contentment is great gain"

~ 1 Timothy 6:6

Being content and being grateful go hand-in-hand. People who are discontent have never developed a habit of being appreciative and thankful for the daily blessings in their lives. Think about this: If you were in the hospital right now, you would be content with something as simple as sitting in your own home in your favorite chair, but when you were at home in your chair, perhaps you were not content then either. We always think we will be content when . . . but why not choose to be content right now?

Even if you don't have what you want or need right now, keep a positive attitude and remain hopeful. Be content with what God has given you, refuse to focus on what you don't have, love others and stay hopeful concerning every area of your life.

In Christ's grace,
