The impact of Feed My Starving Children

Meet Ronel Haiti

Thanks to Feed My Starving Children (FMSC) meals, thousands of children around the world experience healing in body and spirit.

Ronel Dieudonne is one of those children.

In 2006, 8-year-old Ronel was abandoned at Real Hope for Haiti, an orphanage in rural Haiti. His parents had recently died, and his 16-year-old sister was overwhelmed with the responsibility of raising him.

By the spring of 2008 (above right), he was "healthy and ornery!," according to staff of Real Hope for Haiti, and was awaiting adoption.

"In the mean time," the staff wrote, "we continue to give him good food and love."
